

ACM Newsletter

Last week the ACM club had fun practicing for the programming competition that we host annually. We broke into teams and got familiar with approaches to contest questions, and each other! Huge thank you to Logan for designing the fliers that advertised our club kick off, and thank you to his family's restaurant The IceBox & Round About Grill for providing pizza! It was really good to see a large turnout and to have enough food for everyone attending!

Let's keep spreading the word! As our club grows, so do our opportunities. We will have more opportunities to perform service hours and gain merit money/award qualifications, more teams to practice for competitions, and more members to collaborate on projects and contribute discussion topics. Remember, ACM stands for Association of Computing Machinery, we can allocate meetings to explore a variety of computer science topics or instigate personal projects! As the ACM gains members, it will also gain contributions and collaborations towards our explorations. I'm excited to have such an awesome team to explore with!
